MEETING OF WORKERS FOR GOV. HUNT TODAY

For the purpose of creating an organization of wage-earners to be used to further the campaign of Governor George W. P. Hunt, a mass meeting will be held this afternoon. Working men and women and their families will gather at Trades Council hall, 238 East Washington street and there organize a Hunt club, similar to those recently formed in the Globe and Clifton districts.

For a long time it has been understood that labor unions would be in favor of Governor Hunt. But labor leaders say they will be a unit throughout the campaign as well.

The workmen intend to form clubs in every county, and perhaps in the most largely populated districts smaller unit organizations will be formed. The union men, however, say they wish it understood that membership in these clubs is not limited to that of trades unions. Wage-earners generally are being invited, regardless of what their attitude may be toward the unions or what differences may exist in daily life outside the club.

The call for the meeting in Phoenix today was issued during the week by several men prominent in the labor movement in this city, some of whom are also officers of the Arizona State Federation of Labor.

LETTER COURSHIP ENDS IN WEDDING

After Four Years of Separation, Lovers Are United: Wedding of Miss Cornwell to Mr. Pugh

A correspondence courtship culminated in a wedding Friday evening when Miss Mabel Cornwell, a charming girl from Corning, New York, and Perry H. Pugh, a railroad man of Superior, were married at the home of Justice Frank De Souza, who performed the ceremony.

The young folk met in San Francisco on Christmas day four years ago. They became fast friends at once and before Miss Cornwell returned east and Mr. Pugh came back to Arizona the engagement was announced. They did not see each other again until Friday evening when Miss Cornwell crossed the continent to become the bride of the man she had not seen since 1912. Mr. and Mrs. Pugh are at the Adams for a few days. They plan to return Monday to Superior where Mr. Pugh is connected with the Magma-Arizona railroad.

RESERVATION CASE: STATE JURISDICTION

Although Undecided as to Powers, Gandy Offers to Prosecute the Indian Rape Charge

The complaint against Harry Smith on a statutory charge issued yesterday raised the question of jurisdiction. Whether it is a case for the government or the state to prosecute the Indian has not yet been determined.

United States Attorney Flynn is of the opinion that the government has no jurisdiction in the matter since the federal penal code describes no crime covering this case. On the other hand County Attorney Gandy is in doubt as to the state's jurisdiction because Indians are wards of the government and reside on the reservation. He has requested the United States attorney to deliver the man to the state that he might be arrested and tried.

This will be in the nature of a test case and will be followed with interest. Smith, who lives on the Salt River Valley reservation, is a widower with seven children. In 1914 Susie Thomas, a young Indian girl, was employed by Smith to keep house for him and look after his children. It was while she was in his service that the man is alleged to have taken advantage of the girl. She left his house and sought work in the city but even then Smith is said to have annoyed her, and finally when the girl was about to become a mother she sought the protection of the law.

The question is will the state or the government serve her?

SAFETY FIRST AT THE FORD FACTORY

Some months ago the Ford Motor company began publishing for Ford shop-employees a little booklet entitled "Safety, Health and Better Living." It consists of simple but vitally important advice from the medical and sociological departments of the Ford Motor company in the treatment of injuries, hygienic cooking and sanitary living.

The popularity of this booklet among the huge army of Ford workmen and their families is extraordinary. Every two weeks 44,000 copies of its are issued in bulletin form—to the branch factory employees as well as the home factory in Detroit.

And here are some of the results of the precautionary measures of this instruction. Although the number of employees in the Detroit plant has increased from 18,000 to 27,000 since last July, there has been no increase in the number of serious injury cases. On the contrary, figuring the increase in men employed there has been a decrease of nearly 50 per cent. in the number of serious injuries since this little "Safety First" booklet first appeared.

FOUR OUT OF DOZEN STUDENTS GRADUATE

Cook Bible School for Indians Ends Good Year With Remarkable Exercise

Those who did not attend the commencement exercises of the Cook Bible School missed something out of the ordinary. Twelve students were enrolled at the school this year representing half as many tribes. Four of these leave the school this spring one as a preacher and the others as leaders and teachers among their people. All who took part in the program showed an earnestness and determination to better their tribes. Mrs. Doris, a student whose husband is in the school also, gave a splendid talk on "Why some educated Indians fail." She told of the return to the reservation from the Indian schools. There are no tools with which to work, no incentives, no one to keep up their heads—everything so different from the school which they had been attending for several years.

In hearing her presentation of the subject we wondered that all of them did not fail instead of some of them.

John Curley of the Navajo tribe told the wonderful story of his life. He is the grandson and nephew of two of the great chiefs of that tribe. His life was miraculously saved by his mother when he was a small child. When a young man some missionaries came to his village and told of the one and only true God. In going home from one of these meetings in company of some older people, they saw an owl sitting on a tree, the others stopped to pray to it but he, thinking of what he had heard about there being but one God, threw a stone at the owl. This was such a grave offense that the "medicine man" had to be sent for to deal with the lad but his mother protected him and did not send him from her. The mother was afterward converted and was anxious for her boy to come to Phoenix to the Bible School to learn more about the one God. His instructors think he will be a power for good when he returns this year to preach to his tribe for he is willing to endure any hardship in order to learn of the gospel and tell it to others.

The singing of the two male quartette from the Bible and Government schools was excellent and shows that their voices may be cultivated as well as their intellect. Rev. Logie, Rev. Broadhead and their wives deserve wonderful credit for the way in which this school is conducted; they are wholeheartedly in the work and the pupils respond to the kindness and helpfulness shown by them.

Dr. Breid, assistant superintendent of the Government school gave a splendid talk showing that the two schools are close to each other in sympathy as well as position.

Next year those who want to attend a commencement where there is no urging in wearing fine clothes nor any "orations" on "Beyond the Alps," or "Night Brings Out the Stars," and other kindred subjects, should come to the Cook Bible School commencement and hear the simple story of the love of Christ and fellow-man as told by these Indian Nazarene Followers.

INCREASING YIELD OF THE ARIZONA HEN

Arizona hens average only 71 eggs each year. This number should be doubled or even trebled. Make your standard 200 eggs per hen and certainly you will reach 120 if you persistently cull your flock and improve your birds. If Arizona poultry were to average this number per hen it would mean easily three times as much profit out of the poultry business. It costs about as much to keep a hen that lays 70 eggs as one that lays three times this number. The chief difference between the two is the fact that the high yielding hen, although only eating a little more than one that is not a good layer, converts her food into eggs while the other is a lazy boarder. Since the profits come from the production of eggs it is seen that the egg yield is of prime importance. If there are only enough eggs laid to pay for the keep of a hen there is no profit. Every egg laid by a hen above her cost of maintenance is profit. It requires, say, 40 eggs to pay for keeping a hen a year. If she only lays 70 eggs there is only 30 eggs profit. If the hen lays 120 eggs, there is a profit of 80 over twice as much as the average hen. Careful poultrymen should figure on this basis and consider whether the hens are giving 20, 50, 75 or 100 eggs profit on their maintenance. A little extra care in selecting the hens and in managing them will assuredly result in much larger profits in the poultry business—Dr. R. H. Williams, Animal Husbandman, U. of A. Agric. Expt. Station.

future will be larger than they have in the past. I make no claim to being small mentally, therefore, do not undertake small things, and the men who have been the subjects of my charity, good will and support have but themselves as the worst sufferers in the end, for a crook in the end may escape others, but never himself.

I have been upbraided for not saying more to the public in answer to these calamities, but I have no time to bother with the skunks of creation. I have spent twenty-six years in Arizona, every minute of which has been devoted to the development of the country, to the help and uplift of my fellow-men, and the Lord willing, I will be here twenty-six more, engaged in the same kind of work, and while these face can bark and create a great noise, they are too cowardly to bite, and among men, as among dogs, one never saw a puppy try to whip a Newfoundland in the open, because curs of all kinds, whether of men or animals, work in the dark. and will be "cussing" the millers, and maybe at the same time will be using eastern flour in their own homes. The ranchers and the town people of this valley should realize the simple fact that if the demand for home-ground flour was increased, that the millers could pay more for wheat and would employ more labor, and would even be able to sell their flour for less than at present.

One of the biggest drains on the cash of the Salt River Valley is the money sent east for the hundreds of carloads of flour. Now we are asking that you use DAISY and PERFECT flour simply on the basis of merit, for they will satisfy every requirement that a good, pure, wholesome flour should have.
